

THE WOMAN FROM THE PASSING TRAIN

It was a sunny day like every other one. A woman was driving her train. A few years in the past she was a conductor. After a long day at work her shift was over. When she went out of the train she smelled a strange smell: "What's that smell?". She looked under the train and saw a dead boy. "Oh my god! No,no,no!!!!This can't be true!" She heard a men screaming, she went up to him and asked: "Are you okay?" He said: "I lost my child". The woman explained to the man what happened, he asked her to show what happened. When they got to the train he was in shock. The woman asked the men:"Is this your child?". Then man replied: "Yes, he was only 9 years old!". He called the police because he thought she put him under the train and killed him. The woman was a few year in prison. When she got out of the prison she decided to forget the whole situation. She got a job again as a train driver. She was driving that train and everything was beautiful, until one day came. That day she was driving her train and saw the man killed himself same as his child, and she was blamed for another murder. Then she woke up, she was happy. It was only a dream. Little did she know she was in a coma.
