

A boy with no name

It was 2am in the morning, it was a Halloween season. Storms and winds in a small town called Austin. There was a woman named Megan living a normal life but in one night everything has changed. She was watching her favourite TV-show and suddenly she heard a knock on the door. She thought it was just another Halloween prank... She opened the door and saw a little boy standing there without hope, without smile. He was crying and asked her: "Are you my mommy"? She was confused and asked the same question again but still no response... He entered the house and set on the floor. It was silence for a couple of minutes and then he began his story: "My father left me years ago and my mom committed suicide... I saw her do that and I fainted... That was the last thing I remember. Megan said: "You haven't told me your name?" but he responded: "Just like I said, that was the last and the only thing I can remember."
